Standards Booklet 2018

GCSE(9-1) Art and Design 2016 New Specification

The following sequence shows the 2018 standard live work samples in merit order for each component (10 samples for component 1 (Personal Portfolio - legacy specification) and 10 samples for component 2 (ESA title 'Beginning and/or End - legacy specification). Each sample shows a selection of images that exemplifies the salient characteristics of the standard mark.

Irving Penn

Irving Penn is an American photographer. He is best known for his fashion photography, having worked for Vogue, but he also creates modernist still life works of scrap metal and food.

I am going to link his still lifes the theme of beginnings and endings by taking a picture of the food/objects before they change e.g decay or peeling. I am going to incorporate his modernist and simplistic style into my work by accompanying the focal point with a plain background. I find this accentuates the objects as there is nothing to detract from them.

I like his work because the subjects are always well placed and beautifully structured. He was one of the first photographers to place his subject against a grey or white background, and it is this simplicity that makes the photograph eye catching. The black and white is deeply contrasted in his photographs which give them a 'crisp clean look'.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Irving_Penn

The first photograph he has used white, red and black which are contrasting colours. This draws the eye from the core of the apple around it and then the drifts away, out of the image. The second image his use of black and white allows the viewer to focus on the texture and the simple shape of the fruit, instead of the colour.

The third image the spiral shape which has been created acts as a leading line, it leads the viewer's eye from the core of the apple around it and then the drifts away, out of the image. The third of the skin stands out against the pale flesh.

ooting Plan: I am going to photograph apples, lemons and bananas, photographing the inside and again when I have chopped them in half. I will also photograph fruit before and after it is submerged in water and frozen. To take these I will use a DSLR and use a plain, white sheet and a white sheet of paper to create a plain background.

Just set my final outcomes for my second shoot based on the work of Irving Penn. These images look so beginning and ending because the eye image shows an undisturbed piece, some well, a close up of with and a mushroom, as well as some pine needles. I found myself against the plain white background. There is no leading and rounded line to the picture because the food I chose to photograph is so smooth and well-formed. The second image is a piece of cheese as abstraction. I have damaged the food for by cracking the shells the nuts, chopping the mushrooms into halves and cracking the garlic.

think these images and the other experiences from this shoot are successful because they are similar to Irving Penn's still life images. This is because I have positioned the food/objects perfectly beautifully and used a plain white background, therefore replicating Penn's simplistic yet eye-catching style.

E9 report example

Thank you for hosting the moderation this year.

The sole purpose of this report is to comment on the accuracy of your assessment and how the requirements of the centre guidance document have been applied. The moderation process compared your centre's assessment decisions in each Assessment Objective to the national standards for GCSE Art and Design. It is essential that centres are internally standardised across different titles and components prior to the moderation visit to ensure consistent accuracy of assessment.

The work was presented in a way that facilitated the moderation process. All paper work was correct. Mark submission was completed accurately. The sample candidates were clearly labelled.

Component 1 Assessment

The Art Craft and Design, Photography and Textile Design submission had been significantly leniently marked particularly in Objectives 3 and 4. This was evident across all performance levels. Typically, work would have been more accurately described by referring to the performance level descriptors one level below.

Candidate's submissions across all titles did not show the necessary command of recording and visual language to achieve the marks awarded by the centre, when compared to the national standard.

Component 2 Assessment

The Art Craft and Design, Photography and Textile Design submission had been significantly leniently marked particularly in Objectives 3 and 4. This was evident across all performance levels. Typically, work would have been more accurately described by referring to the performance level descriptors one level below.

Candidate's submissions across all titles did not show the necessary command of recording and visual language to achieve the marks awarded by the centre, when compared to the national standard.

Conclusion

Support is available to aid your assessment decisions. Exemplar work across different performance levels and titles will facilitate your understanding of the national standards. The Principal Moderator report highlights issues affecting the assessment pertinent to this year's examination series. The centre may also find it helpful to take advantage of the training provided by Pearson Edexcel on assessment procedures. For information about Pearson Edexcel training please go to <http://qualifications.pearson.com/en/support/training-from-pearson-uk.html?stp1=9&stp1Name=GCSE&stp2=119&stp2Name=Art%20%26%20Design>

Pearson - GCSE Art and Design 2016 - Assessment Taxonomy

How to use the Taxonomy in conjunction with Assessment Grid

The first stage is to decide in which performance level the candidate's work should be placed. When assessing work for each component, teachers should make a holistic judgement using the descriptors in the taxonomy, to establish which performance level matches most closely the candidate's work. The candidate should be placed in the performance level that best exemplifies the characteristics of their work. Candidate's work that falls between two performance levels must achieve all the keyword descriptors in the lower level and some in the level above. Where this happens, teachers must use their professional judgement to decide which performance level is most appropriate using a 'best-fit' approach.

After a performance level has been established, the next stage is to use the assessment grid to decide a mark within the performance level. Read the 'Instructions for use' which accompanies the assessment grid prior to establishing a mark for each assessment objective and total mark.

GCSE Art and Design assessment grid

Instructions for use

You should use the assessment grid on the next page to assess all student work for both components and all titles.

- The assessment grid assesses the four Assessment Objectives equally.
- The four Assessment Objectives are in the first column, with performance descriptors running across the grid.
- The levels of performance head the six remaining columns.
- The six levels of performance each contain three marks.
- There is a maximum of 18 marks available for each Assessment Objective.
- Note that 0 marks should be awarded where work has not achieved the required standard for this qualification.

The descriptors in the assessment grid should be understood as follows:

- Limited – insufficient knowledge, understanding and skills; minimal evidence of, and lack of structure in, the development and recording of ideas.
- Basic – some knowledge, understanding and skills demonstrated but they are simplistic and deliberate; some structure and repetition in the development and recording of ideas.
- Emerging competent – knowledge, understanding and skills are generally adequate but safe.
- Competent and consistent – knowledge, understanding and skills are secure and cohesive throughout.
- Confident and assured – knowledge, understanding and skills are effective and focused throughout.
- Exceptional – knowledge, understanding and skills are in-depth, perceptive and accomplished throughout.

When assessing student work you should:

- refer to published visual exemplars to establish a secure understanding of how descriptors relate to practical evidence;
- use the bulleted descriptors in each box to determine which level of performance the evidence meets best, working through each Assessment Objective separately;
- use the descriptors holistically; there is not one mark available per descriptor;
- decide whether the evidence 'just' meets, 'mostly' meets or 'fully' meets the descriptors in the level of performance to determine the appropriate mark within the level of performance;
- use a best-fit approach to award the mark that corresponds most closely to the descriptors that have been met where evidence for an Assessment Objective meets descriptors from two or more different levels of performance;
- determine a mark out of 18 for each Assessment Objective and either circle the relevant mark or write it in the far right-hand column;
- add the marks for each Assessment Objective together for a total mark out of 72.
